Sudden Order Imprisons 45,000 Others Wanting To Leave

2,000 May Escape Ban On Emigration

RABAT (NJP)—The possibility that the 2,000 Jews now in a transient camp near Casablanca prepared to emigrate to Israel may be allowed to depart was developing here in the wake of strong Jewish protestations against the government's ruling halting all emigration of Jews.

Another several thousand Moroccan Jews are reported in a similarly precarious financial position, although they are not in the transient camp. These Jews have sold their belongings.

A THIRD GROUP numbering forty-odd thousand have registered for emigration with Kadimah, the Moroccan division of the Jewish Agency for Palestine which facilitated the movement of Jews who wished to leave Morocco for Israel.

The actual ruling of the Moroccan authorities peremptorily ordered the dismantling of Kadimah without prior notice, and cancelled the visitors visas of its employees, who are Israelis. It also ended the issuance of mass emigration certificates, and although nominally individual Jews may apply for emigration, the actual effect of the rule is to cut it off altogether.

THIS IS SO because practically all of the Jews emigrating to Israel are not only penniless, but most cannot even write and would hardly hazard a decision to leave Morocco without substantial outside assistance.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the Jewish Agency Executive, charged that the Moroccan iron curtain is worse than in East Europe. There no one is allowed to emigrate, while the Moroccan decree is aimed specifically and solely against Jews.

Dr. Goldmann told a press conference that Moroccan governmental leaders had violated assurances to permit mass emigration of Jews from Morocco. Dr. Goldmann said he thought the Moroccans had acted under Arab League pressure and disputed their contention that Jewish emigration was disturbing the country's economy since, he said, it was only the poorest element that was leaving for Israel.

ON SUNDAY, the Moroccans ordered a French ship, which had already sailed with 1,500 Jewish emigrants, to return to Casablanca. The ship was already outside Moroccan territorial waters, and the captain ignored the order, continuing to Marseilles.

The Jewish Agency, Dr. Goldmann disclosed, was obliged to transfer from its premises to a local philanthropical organization, taking out all the furniture, and was forced to burn all the archives immediately.

THE JERUSALEM POST reported that Philip Klutznick, international president of B'nai B'rith, was among world Jewish leaders who were in Morocco to intervene with the government.

In the last two months, the rate of migration from Morocco has been 5,000 a month.

Rabbi Reichert Says Many in Council Support His Views

By DAVE REZNEK

National Jewish POST Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO (NJP) —

There seems to be widespread local and national support for the position of Rabbi Irving F. Reichert, honorary vice-president of the American Council for Judaism, in his call for contributions to the United Jewish Appeal (NJP, June 15, 1956).

The Council heard attacks on the UJA at its recent convention and has for several years now had a philanthropic fund of its own which dispenses money to needy Jewish causes.

Rabbi Reichert declined to comment "at this time" on reports that he may drop out of the Council.

Sources close to the Council here told THE POST that Rabbi Reichert has for some time been trying to establish a common meeting ground for the organization's extreme wings.

Rabbi Reichert denied, however, that he was consciously playing such a role, declaring that the Council was just like any party or organization. "There are different ideas and views," he said, "on planks in that party platform which are not shared by all members of that party and are open to debate."

HOWEVER, he strongly reaffirmed his support of the UJA and said he feels sure that it is the stand of the majority of Council members.

"My letter underscores and reiterates the attitude I have held since the establishment of the State of Israel. I was never one who felt that we should disassociate ourselves from the UJA or Jewish life. If we wanted to change something I felt we should work within the existing framework."

"The letter is an elaboration and emphasis on a point of view I have consistently held since the establishment of the state," he added.

RABBI REICHERT revealed that since the publication of the letter, which was originally addressed to The Jewish Community Bulletin, the local Jewish paper, he has received "a considerable number of unsolicited messages from Council members which endorsed and applauded my point of view."

He asserted that he felt safe in saying that the majority of members of the Council support the UJA and do so with certain reservations regarding certain techniques and methods of the UJA.

Rabbi Reichert added that he "never rejected the concept of the peoplehood of Israel. My rabbinical background would never permit that. My approach to the whole question of Jewish political nationalism has been a spiritual one, based on a certain view of the destiny of the Jewish people."

He concluded by saying that "whatever storm my letter may have aroused if it has made more friends for the UJA it certainly has been worth the price."

AGENCY DENIES CHARGES YINON SETTLERS PENALIZED

NEW YORK (NJP)—Charges published in an advertisement in The National Jewish POST (NJP, June 8, 1956) that the Yeminite settlement of Yinon was cut off from funds by the Jewish Agency because it defected from the Mapai party, were scouted in a statement issued this week by The Jewish Agency.

"Yinon is a highly successful settlement and Betar's allegations of 'starvation' are completely groundless," the statement asserted.

Betar is the Revisionist youth movement which charged in the advertisement that the Mapai party took reprisals against Yinon.

A LETTER in the advertisement from the "Yinon Settlers Committee" asserted that "within less than 24 hours after our vote against the Mapai . . . Jewish Agency officials deprived us of our mules and our cars, our cows were led away, our people forcibly removed from 'outside' jobs with the Agency, while new members (reliable Mapai strongmen) were moved in by force."

The statement issued by the Jewish Agency declared that "Yinon is a highly successful settlement. . . . The average income of the settlers is one of the highest among new agricultural settlements.

THE AGENCY blamed the settlement's difficulties on the two Yemenite clans which originally founded Yinon at Rosh Haayin. A fight for control by the two clans led to one of the clans soliciting aid from the Herut party, after such aid had been rejected by Hapoel Hamizrachi and Haoved Hatzioni. The Knesset Committee on Internal Affairs ruled against Herut's intervention, the Agency statement said.

The statement added that the Israel public was well informed on the facts "which make it clear that Yinon is in no need of additional special support. The settlement receives necessary financial assistance from the Jewish Agency and Israel government budgets, as in the case with all settlers in Israel. Any appeal to the American public in behalf of Yinon is unjustified and wholly misleading."

TEACHERS' GROUP DEFENDS TOURS BARRING JEWS

NEW YORK (WNS) — The National Education Association, largest teachers' organization in the United States, came in for a barrage of criticism this week when it became known that it had submitted to Arab demands that Jewish members of the Association be barred from joining tours which include visits to Arab countries. It was learned that four round-the-world tours sponsored by the Association now exclude Jewish teachers, while non-Jewish teachers applying to join in the tours are required to file affidavits from clergymen attesting that they are not members of the Jewish faith.

The American Jewish Congress called on the NEA to cancel the four tours. "While the NEA has no responsibility for the Medieval practices of other nations, it does have the responsibility not to abet those practices," said Shad Polier, vice-president of the AJC, in a telegram.

Eban Recall Expected

SHARETT'S REPLACEMENT SAID SLAP AT DULLES

JERUSALEM (NJP) — The succession of Golda Myerson to the post of Foreign Minister has very little to do with the much publicized activist or non-activist positions of Ben-Gurion and Moshe Sharett, whom the former Milwaukee school teacher is succeeding.

Mostly the change is a slap at Dulles and the United States, as the future will most likely show.

It was felt that Sharett was too strongly committed to co-operation with the United States, and since his policy was not making possible Israel's security in view of the United States' refusal to sell arms to Israel, his replacing was considered necessary.

At the same time it is believed that Mrs. Myerson will introduce a new note in relations with Russia. Not only did she serve as first ambassador to the Soviet, but it is felt that her attitude of non-reliance on the United States will meet with approval in Moscow.

If some interpret this as a victory for Soviet foreign policy in the Middle East, that is their prerogative.

It is rumored in diplomatic circles that Russia is on the verge of shifting her attitude towards Israel, and the replacement of Sharett could pave the way for that change.

Meanwhile there were indications that the Cabinet reshuffle may result in diplomatic shake-ups of vast importance. Thus it was disclosed that Dr. Walter Eytan, director of the Foreign Ministry, had hurriedly been recalled from his current tour of European countries for what is believed an appointment as envoy to Great Britain. On the other hand, Ambassador Eliahu Elath has been recalled from London for an appointment to Washington as replacement for Ambassador Abba Eban who, it is re-

The Labor Ministry post vacated by Mrs. Myerson went to Mordecai Namir, secretary general of the Histadrut.

'Released Time' Hit, But Teaching About Religion Urged

Desegregation Making Progress, BB Learns

NORMAN, Okla. (NJP) — A human relations conference sponsored jointly by a national Jewish organization and the University of Oklahoma here heard reports of the progress of desegregation in Southern schools and a warning against the wrong kind of teaching of religion in the schools.

The 2-day conference which was made possible by a $5,000 grant from the Ford Foundation brought together over 100 educators from 14 Southern states.

Both Prof. Frederick B. Roth and Dr. Lawrence F. Kinney, who keynoted the first-day sessions, expressed optimism over the advances made so far in achieving desegregation in the South, and advised against forcing the issue precipitately.

Prof. Carson McGuire, of the University of Texas, told of surveys he made which showed American children basically more religious than their parents. He criticized the "released time" plan for religious education in the public schools, but urged that consideration be given to teaching religion in the schools as part of the "idea systems" of mankind in the same way in which philosophy, history, science and economics are taught.

Numerous Excuses Given To Withhold Permission

Rabbi Is Barred From Holding Home Services

TORONTO (NJP)—An Orthodox rabbi here has been stopped from converting a private home into a synagogue because, as one city councillor put it, "it's too close to my home and those of other township officials."

That was four weeks ago, when the council refused the second request of Rabbi Isaac Oelbaum, leader of Ahavath Achim congregation.

PREVIOUSLY, the rabbi had asked for permission to hold services at another residence, and was turned down because the street was zoned for residential use only.

The rabbi was told that he might locate on another street not zoned strictly for residential use, and he requested permission to buy the second house and use it.

Permission was refused.

AT FIRST the rabbi was told that there was not sufficient off-street parking for his congregation, against which he argued that his people were not permitted to drive to Sabbath services.

Later, the councillor, Reeve Fred Hall, who opposed the rabbi, said a delegation had asked him to oppose the issuing of a permit for the synagogue and banquet hall. He said also that he had been requested to zone the area as strictly residential.

ANSWERING HALL, as part of a 2-to-6 minority, Councillor Harold Linden charged that "under no circumstances could Vaughan road ever be called a strictly residential area."

There are already six churches there, one built as recently as last year, he continued.

He also dismissed as a rumor the talk that the tiny congregation planned to build a banquet hall.

"THE PREMISES will be used for a house of worship only, with perhaps one classroom upstairs for religious instruction," said Linden.

He was answered that the objection was not to the services, but to weddings, receptions and other activities on others' holy days.

Despite Linden's arguments, the measure was laid aside until the end of this month, when the council returns from vacation.

LAUNCH DRIVE FOR ISRAEL CONSERVATIVE CENTER

NEW YORK (NJP)—The spiritual cultural-center, which the Jewish Theological Seminary of America (Conservative) is planning to build in Jerusalem, will also house a Conservative synagogue eventually, it was announced here as plans were completed for the first fund-raising affair for the project.

Gov. Theodore McKeldin of Maryland has accepted the position of honorary chairman, and a national committee is now being formed which Benjamin H. Swig, of San Francisco, will co-chair.

A dinner next Wednesday at the Governor's mansion in Annapolis will launch the drive.

Plans call for ground-breaking for the residence hall, which will be the first building in the group next spring. Later a research library, study and lecture facilities and the synagogue will be built.

Students of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, will spend a year of their study for the rabbinate at the residence hall.

Lack of Funds May Close Hospital

NAHARIYA, Israel—Lack of funds may soon force the only hospital in the entire Western Galilee, including Acre, to close.

Money for maintaining the hospital has so far come from three sources: Israel's ministry of health, which this year gave 70,000 of the 250,000 Israel pounds needed; the Kupat Holim, which has given in proportion to the number of its members, but does not pay enough to cover the hospitalization, and the local council has attempted to make up the difference.

The hospital contains both surgical and maternity wards, both of which are usually full.

Brandeis Raises $7,628,340 in Year; 191 Get Degrees

WALTHAM (NJP)—With 6,000 people looking on, the largest crowd ever to attend a commencement at Brandeis University, bachelor of arts degrees were conferred on 191 members of the class of 1956.

The overflow attendance heard Dr. Abram L. Sachar, university president, announce that the school's income for the academic year now closing had been the highest in the 80-year history of the institution —$7,628,340.

Fund Priority For Israel Urged By Sachar

HOUSTON (NJP)—In a letter to Philip Lown, general chairman of the Combined Jewish Appeal here, Dr. Abram L. Sachar, president of Brandeis university, declared that "top priority (in fund-raising) must go to sustained support for the little embattled people of Israel . . ."

Declaring that there are endless causes that call for devotion and support and that "we have no right to call a moratorium on any of them," the Jewish educator said:

"None of us can control the allocations of our patrons, but we can encourage them to discharge their priority responsibilities first, before they undertake to be unusually generous for all other purposes."

He expressed the hope "that our economy will continue to flourish so that there need be no 'either-or' in philanthropy. So long as we give from fat and not from blood and bone, there may be enough for every good cause."

Dr. Sachar, without naming the University of Alabama, used the incident in which Autherine Luce was barred to point up the importance of financial independence for schools of higher learning.

"The tragedy of an outstanding college president in an important Southern university who took an opportunistic stand on integration and wrecked a commendable reputation as an educator, did not come about because he was a bigot or a weakling or a reactionary," Dr. Sachar asserted.

"IT CAME ABOUT because his university was so heavily dependent for its support upon a politically motivated legislature. As he wrestled with his conscience for guidance in those awful hours of decision, he probably thought of the livelihood of thousands of faculty families and administrative personnel."

This year's commencement exercises were dedicated to the observance of the 100th anniversary of the birth of the late U. S. Supreme Court Justice Louis Dembitz Brandeis for whom the University was named. Honorary degrees were presented to seven outstanding public figures active in the furtherance of the ideals of Justice Brandeis.

HONORARY DEGREES of Doctor of Humane Letters were conferred upon Dean Acheson, a former law secretary of Justice Brandeis; Felix Frankfurter, Associate Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, and Robert Szold, chairman of the board of the Palestine Economic Corporation.

Honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws were conferred upon Calvert Magruder, chief judge of the U. S. Court of Appeals in Boston and a former secretary to Justice Brandeis; Charles E. Wyzanski Jr., U. S. district judge for Massachusetts; and Erwin N. Groszold, dean of Harvard University Law School; and an honorary degree of Doctor of Civil Laws was conferred upon Irving Dilliard, editor of the editorial page of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Delegation on Arab Bias Gets Little Satisfaction

WASHINGTON (NJP) — A delegation from the American Jewish Congress got little satisfaction here last week when it approached the State Department on the matter of the Arab boycott and discrimination against American Jews.

The group headed by Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the Congress, was met by William M. Rountree, acting assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern Affairs, who listened to their protests, but gave no assurance that any public or effective protest would be made. Rountree expressed the State Department's disapproval of the discriminatory practices.

Knesset Probes Emigration; Paper Calls For Legislation

JERUSALEM (NJP)—Concerned with the doubling of the rate of emigration over last year, the Knesset has named a Parliamentary committee to find the answer to the question why Israelis emigrate.

Although emigration is below that of the peak year—1952-53—the disquieting feature of the present migration is the type of citizen involved.

Eighty per cent of those leaving are said to be people with homes and jobs, and many are old settlers—not new immigrants.

For the past six weeks Israel's biggest daily paper, Maariv, has been leading a crusade against what it calls, "the evil of emigration from Israel." In the Hebrew language, those who immigrate to Israel are called "olim" (those who go up), while those who emigrate from Israel are called "yordim" (those who go down).

THERE WERE over 9,000 yordim in the period from April 1, 1955, to April 1, 1956. These 9,000 people registered frankly and openly as emigrants and, as the paper shows, in its series of articles, there were also quite a few others, who applied for their exit permits on various family, medical and commercial reasons, and who have not yet returned to Israel.

Whether this means that they had left Israel for good is not yet certain.

What Maariv is worried about, however, is not so much the over-all number of the yordim as their quality. Numerically, the olim exceed the yordim by as much as four to one, but nearly all olim are destitute new immigrants from North Africa, without any useful trades, skills or professions. They have to be transported, fed, housed, trained and supplied at the expense of the Israeli taxpayers and the generous American donors to various fund-raising drives.

QUITE A FEW YEARS pass before these North African immigrants become independent and self-sustaining and still more years have to pass before they can be expected to make any significant contribution to Israel's economy.

On the other hand, all of the yordim are people of some means. This is clear, if only because to leave Israel requires ample funds. Moreover, as official statistics and Maariv's survey show, nearly all of the yordim are skilled tradesmen and professionals sorely needed by the country.

ACCORDING to the paper, there were few if any sabras among the yordim. The vast majority was composed of people who arrived in Israel penniless or with limited means years ago, and have made their money here. To train a good doctor costs about 30,000 pounds. Of this only 5,000 at the most is paid by the student. Sometimes it is less, sometimes, if he has a scholarship, it is nothing, but never more than 5,000.

THIS MEANS that the rest, about 25,000 pounds (about $14,000) is an expense borne by the state's educational budget or the American Jewish donations to the Hebrew University's Medical School. The emigration of more than 100 Israeli doctors in the years 1955-1956 represents therefore a loss of over 2,000,000 pounds, either in straight investment or in lost value, as new doctors will have to be trained in the place of those who left. It is not fair, Maariv said editorially, to let people who have built their careers and fortunes in the poor State of Israel abandon the State with the aid of the money they have made here.

Democracy is all right, the paper asserted, but legislation must be passed quickly to limit emigration from Israel, by forcing all prospective yordim to pay

Delusion They Can Destroy Israel Is Block

Goldmann Sees Peace With Arabs, With Israel In Near East Federation

PARIS (NJP)—Nahum Goldmann told the Foreign Press Association here that he looked forward to an Israeli-Arab peace settlement "in the not too distant future."

The new president of the World Zionist Organization said that the problems between Israel and her neighbors could be successfully settled in a matter of months or even weeks if tackled in serious negotiations.

The difficulty, however, he declared, was chiefly psychological, and the Arabs would have to be cured of the emotional kink which gave them the delusion that they could destroy the Jewish state.

Ultimately Goldmann saw the establishment of a Judaeo-Arab alliance, perhaps within the framework of a Near East Federation of States grouping Israel with the Arab countries.

RELIGIOUS QUESTIONS DROP; SCHOOLS NOW ASK PHOTOS

PHILADELPHIA—Although discriminatory application blanks are steadily disappearing from Pennsylvania's colleges and professional schools, the number requiring photographs with applications is increasing.

This was the gist of the findings in a survey of 120 educational institutions, conducted by the Jewish Community Relations Council and the Fellowship Commission.

The number of schools asking no discriminatory questions whatever increased, according to back everything they owe the nation, whether it is free transportation to Israel they once got on their way here, or an apartment at reduced rates, free education and training or reduced tax rates—let them pay everything back first before they can go down.

The Jewish Times here, from 27 in 1950 to 40 in 1953, to 41 this year.

Nine schools now ask race, religion and nationality. None ask race alone, two ask nationality alone, and 15 (all sectarian) ask religion alone.

The number asking for photographs alone has increased from 10 to 16.

Three of the nine schools asking all the questions are non-denominational. These three are Bucknell, Grove City college, and the University of Scranton.

Prefabricated Shuls Built By U. S. Steel

NEW YORK (NJP) — The United States Steel corp., builder of prefabricated homes, and the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, have united to provide—of all things—a prefabricated synagogue.

Requiring only a fraction of the time it takes to build a regulation synagogue, the new house of worship comes in two choices.

UOJC officials have promised is being perfected which can be that the synagogue can be fully attached to the house of worship erected between now and Rosh Hashana.

In addition, a school building buildings.

JEWS OF ISRAEL GIVE STONE FOR SPINOZA GRAVE

HAIFA—Three hundred years after excommunication by Jews in Amsterdam, Jews of Israel have sent a basalt headstone with the Hebrew inscription "Amcha" (Your People) for the grave of Baruch Spinoza.

The stone, mined from a Galilee quarry, was ceremonially loaded on the S.S. Tamar at this port.

It is being shipped to the warden of churchyards of the Reformed Churches of The Hague, where the philosopher is buried in the garden of a church.

A fund for maintenance of the grave is to be contributed half by Jewish organizations and half by non-Jewish universities.

The tercentenary of Spinoza's excommunication occurred last week.

RESORT DISSUADING JEWS HIT BY MICHIGAN OFFICIAL

LANSING, Mich. (NJP)—Michigan's Attorney General Thomas M. Kavanagh charged last Friday that a resort, which was advertising that it serves a "Gentile clientele" is violating the state civil rights law.

In a reply to Robert Furlong, executive secretary of the Michigan Tourist Council, Kavanagh said the slogan of Tabor Farms, a resort near Holland, Mich., constitutes a "cloak and disguise and an indirect means to hide discrimination."

He asked Furlong to have the tourist council discontinue its advertising for the resort and stop making its services available to the resort's operator.

Kavanagh said calendars advertising the resort and distributed by the Tourist Council said, "for 63 years we have served a Gentile clientele."

These words, he said, can have "only one purpose and meaning in the understanding of the Jewish public—namely to communicate the idea that Jews are not welcome . . ."

An earlier opinion from Kavanagh's office held that the Tourist Council should deny its services to any advertisers using such words as "restricted," "restricted clientele," or "selected clientele" in their advertising.

WAR INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN

JERUSALEM—Primary school teachers here are now receiving bundles of an 80-page booklet that gives instructions on steps to be taken in case of a war-like emergency.

Bias In Canada Goes Underground

By CHAIM NEWMAN

National Jewish Post Correspondent
TORONTO (NJP)—"Discrimination has now gone underground rather than disappeared" in Canada, Harry Rasky, a Canadian editor, says.

Writing in Saturday Night, a leading Canadian review, Rasky, editor of Liberty magazine, Canada's second largest monthly, said that external anti-Semitism is hard to find in Canada, and the "Non-Gentile Need Not Apply" signs in newspaper ads, prevalent in the '30s, have all but disappeared.

Rasky pointed out, however, that universities still maintain quota systems; medical schools still admit only a certain number of Jewish applicants; few Jewish engineers are allowed in large corporations; Jewish doctors still find it difficult to find hospital beds for patients; and Jews in academic life find that prejudices "block their path."

The most blatant anti-Semitism "exists at the top level of society. It's a rare thing for a 'prestige' club to allow Jews as members," Rasky said.

Philadelphia Plans Novel Bond Affair

PHILADELPHIA (NJP)—What probably will be the most novel bond-selling affair in the history of Israel Bond sales in the U.S. is expected to take place here when the new Israel steamship the S.S. Zion makes her first call at the Philadelphia port in September.

The Jewish Times here said the affair, which will be held on the beautiful ocean-going liner, will begin with an exclusive captain's dinner, to be followed by a buffet supper and dancing on the deck for the smaller bond buyers.

S. African Gives $1,400 For Moscow Yeshiva

JOHANNESBURG (NJP) — The first outside Jewish gift towards the projected rabbinical seminary to be established in Moscow has come from Val Myers, a local businessman.

While in Leningrad recently Myers was introduced to Chief Rabbi Schlifer of Moscow, who was attending services there. Hearing of the proposed school, Myers offered the free will gift to Rabbi Schlifer, who was happy to accept. It was in the amount of 5,000 rubles, which is equal to about $1,400.

While there seems to be a definite decline in anti-Semitism among ordinary people, Rasky concludes that a "kind of co-existence exists in society."

It's Like Being On American Highway

Luxurious Filling Stations Go Up All Over Israel Just As In U. S.

JERUSALEM (NJP)—You may be driving down one of Israel's fine macadam highways, and if you aren't too alert, you'll feel that it's an American road you're on, especially now that luxurious gas stations are going up all over the map.

Attractive Delek (government oil company), Shell, and Esso filling stations are being erected on all main roads, and other filling stations with cafes attached are springing up seemingly overnight.

Even down south, in the Negev, the motorist can now have his tank filled and his windshield cleaned, and grab a sandwich, all in a matter of minutes.

The bright lights, courteous service, and tasty food await motorists all hours of the night, and seem to be attracting a roaring business.

$10,000 CEMETERY DAMAGE

PITTSBURGH — A gang responsible for overturning 86 tombstones in a Jewish cemetery at West Mifflin, near here, was being sought by police. Damage was estimated at $10,000. In view of the extensive damage, authorities believe a number of persons were involved in the vandalism.

EGYPTIAN LEAVES ISRAEL

LYDDA AIRPORT, Israel—An Egyptian military photographer, the only passenger aboard a Dutch KLM plane that was intercepted May 1 over Machtesh Ramon in the center of the Negev and forced to land here, left last week, when the plane was allowed to take off for Cairo.

This Notice Sent To Wrong Club

ANTWERP (NJP)—Someone made the mistake of sending a notice to the Antwerp Diamond club offering to purchase diamonds on condition that the seller not be a Jew.

This was a mistake, because the Antwerp Diamond club is made up of Jews.

President M. A. Rotti issued a sharp protest to the Belgian Ministry of Commerce. The Belgian Minister of Trade, M. V. Larock, has promised an investigation.

Israel, Bonn Confer On Diplomatic Relations

BONN (NJP) — Negotiations between West Germany and Israel are being conducted looking towards the establishment of diplomatic relations.

CANDIDATE SEEKS LAW TO BAN NAME-CHANGING

BROOKLYN (NJP)—It may soon be illegal to change your name to hide your religion—that is, if Samuel Abrahams, a Jewish candidate on the Republican ticket for New York state senator, has his way.

Abrahams, addressing the inter-collegiates of Young Israel of Flatbush last Friday night, advocated the adoption of major legislation revisions in Article 6 of the New York civil rights law and the substitution of more rigid barriers to name-changing.

"NAMES ARE powerful indicators of long-standing traditions, customs, and heritages and should not be tampered with lightly and haphazardly," the New York lawyer said.

Abrahams said the legislature should make provisions for legal name-changing in the following three instances only:

- Extreme difficulty of pronunciation articulation.
- Similarity of name to sinister or criminal personages, such as Stalin or Hitler, and Children of divorced parents, where the mother has been given custody, remarries, and the best interests of the child will be served by the change.

WITH SUCH legislation, Abrahams said, the courts would be denied the right to grant change-of-name petitions for such reasons as economic necessity, social acceptance and societal conformity. The new statute should also bar any name-changing without resort to the legal machinery of the court, he said.

East Germany Refuses To Pay Reparations

BERLIN—East Germany will not compensate Jews despoiled of their property by its Nazis unless they are living in its territory, nor will it make retribution to Israel, as West Germany has done.

A spokesman for the Communist government told the press here last week that Israel did not exist during World War II and, therefore, could not fight Germany. For that reason, he said, East Germany cannot give her anything.

Wouk Finds Religious Spirit Is Much Stronger In Israel

By DR. EMIL FEUERSTEIN
National Jewish POST Correspondent
TEL AVIV (NJP) — Herman Wouk, famous novelist, told The POST that the religious spirit in Israel is much stronger than people think.

Religion is in the air here, the best-selling author asserted.

"I have found the same religious revival in Israel which is characteristic of America today."

He told about walking in the street to services with his grandfather.

"WHEN I went with my grandfather to the synagogue on the Sabbath, we walked in the middle of the road. In America, we would have been killed on the spot."

Wouk said he was impressed with the comparative youth of Israel.

He said that waiting for him on his arrival at Lydda was a representative of the Foreign Office. It turned out he was 19 years old. The driver who took him to Jerusalem was a mere child, and the policeman he met on the street, nothing but youths, he declared.

THE REAL surprise he had in this connection, he said, was when he met the military governor for Nazareth. He said he was expecting an old chap with grey hair and with numerous military decorations on his breast. Instead he was met by a young fellow who had to introduce himself as the military governor.

Wouk, who is an observant Orthodox Jew, said that 20 years ago in the United States everyone felt that religion was fast disappearing. Today, he pointed out, everywhere one finds in the United States new yeshivah and new education centers.

WOUK'S RELATIVES in Israel had congregated at the home of Mr. Genechowsky in Bnei Brak to meet him. The appointed hour passed, and the anxious family sent out messengers to search for him.

At the house of Wouk's grandfather in Tel Aviv they were told that the author had left for Bnei Brak three hours ago. The family began to fear for his safety, when one of the messengers brought him back with him. Wouk explained that he was passing the building of a famous yeshiva when he heard the young men at their studies. He decided to take a look, and immediately forgot about his appointment. When he was found by the messenger, he was deep in a page of the Gemorah at the Slobodka Yeshiva.

Egyptian Movie Released In Israel

JERUSALEM — An Egyptian movie, "L'ahalibo" ("Quicksilver") last week was given its Israel premiere at the Semadar here.

The film, according to The Jerusalem Post, is one of five brought to Israel by immigrants, and released recently by the film

DARING FLIGHT TO HOLY LAND IS ATTEMPTED

LONDON — A Jewish watch repairman from San Francisco, who is attempting a hazardous flight from his home town to Israel in a rebuilt light monoplane, arrived here on his first leg of an expected 18,000-mile jaunt.

Peter Gluckmann, known as "San Francisco's flying watchmaker," said he was very anxious to see Israel and to observe at first hand what has been accomplished there. He plans to visit relatives in Tel Aviv and Haifa, whom he hasn't seen in years, he said.

Gluckmann stopped here to pay a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Gluckman. This is his second flight to England. He startled Americans and Britons alike when he flew in 1953 from San Francisco in his 90-horsepower single engine plane.

This time, however, he plans to make it a longer trip. After visiting Israel, he intends to return to San Francisco by way of Africa and South America, crossing the treacherous Andes mountains. The 30-year-old Gluckman operates a jewelry and watch repair shop in San Francisco.

Israel May Get $25 Million From U. S.

WASHINGTON (NJP)—Israel is expected to receive approximately $25 million from the U.S. for grant-in-aid for the 1956-57 fiscal year. In some quarters the figure is set at $20 million but since the $63 million earmarked for the Middle East is not broken down, it will rest with the State Department as to how the sum is divided, providing, of course, Congress okays the foreign aid measure.

One of the other films, "The Cigarette and the Cup," features Samia Gamal, the first Egyptian star to be signed up by Hollywood.

Among the pictures are new ones, produced last year, during Egypt's new regime.

Israel Takes Over Two Destroyers, Torah and All

PLYMOUTH, England (NJP) Israel's two new sleek destroyers, said to be capable of delivering an attack equal to anything the Arabs could muster, sailed from here last week and should be nearing their home port of Haifa soon.

Built in 1944, the two destroyers never saw service. They were refitted for the Israeli Navy, of which they will be the two main units, and are manned by Israeli sailors. The sailors were trained by English naval officers.

Chaplain of the flotilla, Rabbi Avram Cohen, said that kashrut is fully observed aboard the ships, and that Friday evening and Sabbath services are held regularly without fail. Both ships have Torahs and on the Sabbath only essential duties are carried out.

The length of the two destroyers, named Yaffo and Elath, over-all is 362½ ft. and 35½ ft. across the beam. The present complement of each vessel is 15 officers and 135 men. Armaments carried are four 4.5-inch guns, six 40-millimetre A.A. guns, eight 21-inch torpedo tubes, four depth-charge tanks, and various small arms. The turbine-driven engines develop 40,000 h.p. and a speed of about 32 knots. They are fully equipped with radar and other anti-submarine devices.

Two Guess Rabbi Goldstein As Mystery Person

By now we've learned the lesson that no matter how flimsy the hints given about the Mystery Person that some readers will inevitably name him practically with nothing to go on at all.

GOLDSTEIN

Although the two hints given hardly identified him, two readers this week correctly named Dr. Israel Goldstein as the current Mystery Man to share the $20.00 offered for the correct answer after two hints.

The winners are Mrs. Dora Friedland, 119-14 Union Turnpike, Kew Gardens, N. Y., and Stanley Tepper, 639 Barbey St., Brooklyn 7, N. Y.

The problem caused by late arrival of guesses seems to have been solved by holding the page on which The Mystery Person Contest appears until the last minute on Wednesday morning.

The first hint for the new Mystery Person is:

The Mystery Person called for the creation of a "Council for Israel" to include Zionists and non-Zionists on a common platform for all pro-Israel forces in the United States.

The rules are: The Mystery person will be a living Jew, who is known for activity within the Jewish community. The Mystery Person may be a man or woman and can live in any part of the world:

Prize money is $25.00, but each week a new hint will be given, while the prize money will be reduced by $5.00 until the final week when only $5.00 will be offered.

Replies must be on the official coupon blank in this week's paper, and must be postmarked not later than Monday, June 25 (or Tuesday, June 26), if the reader lives west of Denver, Colo.). In case of a tie, the prize money will be divided equally among those answering correctly. Answers should be addressed to The Mystery Person Contest, National Jewish Post, Post Office Box 1633, Indianapolis 6, Indiana.

A neighbor of mine recently welcomed his Israeli brother and his family to the United States, where they are now living. The American brother was always pointing out the superiority of American life over Israeli life.

One day the American took his 10-year-old Israeli niece for a walk. They stopped before a candy store. Knowing how scarce sweets were in Israel, he boasted:

"See, look at all the candy we have in America!!"

The kibbutz-raised child looked up and asked innocently, "So when are they going to distribute it to the children?"

Here Are The Students NJP Readers Are Putting Through High School

By CARL ALPERT

HAIFA—Who gets a high school education in Israel? Those whose parents can afford to pay for it; those who are brilliant enough to win some of the limited government scholarships which are offered; and those few who may have a rich uncle in America or a generous sponsoring friend.

Last week I told of the response from readers of this column which has made it possible for me to guarantee a year of high school for seven boys and girls. Meet some of the young people, so that you will know the kind of human material of which we speak. There is tragedy-pathos in every case—and a full measure of promise and fulfillment, if only given the opportunity.

HERE IS 16-year-old Zvi Zimmerman, whose life began under a cloud. He was born at Stalingrad Airport, and within a year his father had been killed in the war. The boy and his mother escaped from Russia in 1945 and found temporary haven in a D.P. camp. A chance to sail to Israel on one of the illegal boats was quickly seized, but the ship turned out to be the ill-fated Exodus, 1947, whose passengers, it will be recalled, were sent back to Germany by the British.

They made it at last, and Mrs. Zimmerman works as a cook in a restaurant kitchen. Zvi is older than the other boys in his class, but he got a late start in life. He is a fine, upstanding young fellow—and he is getting a high school education at last.

MEET JOSEPH LEVY, 15 years old. His father, a laborer, made a half-way decent living in Haifa Port, and was able to send his boy to school after some scrimping and saving. In the middle of the second year, Mr. Levy died suddenly, leaving nothing. Joseph fell behind in his tuition payments, and the school authorities, without independent means of their own, expressed concern. The lad is quite bright, and excels in mathematics. I think his mother has since gotten a job, but the generous help of National Jewish POST readers made it possible for him to go on with his high school education.

Then there are the twins. Mr. and Mrs. Mandler came to Israel from Rumania in 1948, with their three children. They were among 900 other "illegal" immigrants on the tiny freighter which they renamed the S.S. Tirat Zvi. Sailing time from Italy was 15 days, and when they were only a few hours off the coast of Palestine they were intercepted by British warships and escorted to the camps in Cyprus. The family spent seven months there, before the birth of Israel opened the doors for them.

MR. MANDLER is a house painter. Mrs. Mandler is a hopeless invalid, victim of the ordeals which she went through. The eldest son is in the Israel army. There are twin boys, Shmuel and Itzhak, now 15. Their record at grammar school showed them to be gifted youngsters.

Their ambition: To enter a technical high school where they could study radio mechanics or precision mechanics. The father had enough money to send one of the boys to school—but the cost of tuition for both was beyond him. Any idea of separating the two boys was inconceivable. They have gone through life hand in hand. They are equally talented; their ambitions are identical. Neither one would consent to go to school if the other were excluded. Thanks to readers of the National Jewish POST, they are now completing their studies successfully.

THERE ARE others, but these are typical. Would you like to "adopt" a child and send him to high school for a year? The candidates for next year, hearing that I have friends in America, have already come crowding around. I had hoped that I would not have to carry this responsibility again this year, but the opportunity to be of service to youth outweighs personal inconvenience.

Tuition fees average about $200 per year. If you will make out your checks to "The Technion," and send them directly to me at P.O. Box 4910, Haifa, Israel, I shall see to it that you receive a receipt from the American Technion Society, which is recognized by the U.S. Treasury as a tax-deductible organization. Further, I shall send you a picture of the boy or girl whom you have adopted, and full details on why I have selected this particular youth, after interview, to receive a high school education.

MANY OF you are about to leave for summer vacation. Your children are sure of their next year's education. How about assuring at least one year of high school for an Israeli child this coming fall?

You have it in your power to open the door of promise and opportunity for such a child—and at the same time enable a training or education which will make a better citizen to help build Israel's future and security.

THE ARTS

'Land of the Bible' Impressive; Reveals Irresistible Tide Of Progress of Israel

By JOSEPH GALE

The sensation one receives from "The Land of the Bible," a 20-minute Cinemascope production in color, is compounded equally of blazing sunlight, forward drive and constant construction.

This is ostensibly the story of modern Israel in the view of the major religions which occupy its central city. But beyond some early-minute lip service to the other two, the film focuses entirely on Judaism and what Jews have accomplished since the advent of their second stewardship in several thousand years.

The results are amazing; one cannot fail to be impressed. . . . Everywhere, everything is a building, homes and factories, gardens, settlements, irrigation canals, schools or armies. The feeling of an irresistible tide of progress is almost physical—and all this takes place under a hot, golden sunlight that bathes sea and desert alike.

The land, as revealed by Director Jack Muth, is picturesque and beautiful. The briefness of the picture affords little time to absorb a feeling of history, but such seems superbly unrequired in the case of Israel. There is today so much curiosity and interest about the nation, and its people and customs, that any unplanned, roving production would be assured of an avid audience here.

Photography, it seems to us, is a means of effective public relations neglected by the Israelis. This person, for instance, would welcome the chance to sit through several full-length documentaries about Israel, in which the cameraman simply left his lens open and walked the length and breadth of the land. It is impossible for any cultured and sensitive Jew not to feel kinship with Israel and its people. The degree of kinship may be another thing, but the germ, we believe, lies in everyone, waiting to bloom.

ONE CAUSE of noisy, prematurely aging record surfaces, is the dust and lint that collect in the grooves and remain bound there by static electricity. Cleaning solutions, or any amount of wiping, seldom remove the dust, and repeated playing serve to grind the microscopic particles into the grooves. Eventually, this becomes audible as noise and scratch, and the recording breaks down and becomes unsatisfactory.

Since the long-playing record, manufacturers have sought, without complete success, to develop a remedy for this ailment. Wiping the record with a damp cloth or sponge prior to each use is the basic method. This removes the static charge, but does not clean the grooves. Wiping or spraying with a chemically-treated cloth accomplishes the same purpose, with the purported added advantage of rendering the disc immune to static electricity for several dozen playings. Sometimes this proves to be a fact. We use both methods, and determined some time ago that it was the optimum course available.

ALONG COMES a product of the Mercury Scientific Products Corp. of Los Angeles, called the Dis-Charger, a tiny plastic device which ionizes the air in the immediate vicinity of the stylus. It weighs a half-gram, and when clipped to the pickup arm scans the revolving record, constantly drawing off the static charge. As this is dissipated, dust in the grooves is released and appears as the usual blob at the nub of the stylus, where it can be picked off. After a couple of playings, dust will rarely appear, and since the Dis-Charger uses a radium base, its life is guaranteed to be as long as yours and your descendants, as well.

The little tube, scarcely half-an-inch long, appears to fulfill most of these claims. We found that it reduced surface noise immediately and engendered the safe and sure feeling that our records were under constant and vigilant protection. We do not expect to test the claim that the Dis-Charger will reach half-strength in about 1,000 years, but we can vouch that it is a genuine article which performs a definite and needed service.

BALLET THEATRE was much improved this year — which is saying a lot, since it was much improved last year also. For long stretches during its recent run at the Metropolitan Opera House, we had the sensation of reliving circa 1940, when the company was indisputably the finest. From out of the slough of despond it functions today in a highly advanced manner, with a flair and skill once known so well, and with a set of dancers, headed by Nora Kaye and Erik Bruhn, who get visibly better each year, and with Anthony Tudor back as choreographer.

The boys and girls of the corps seem more improved as individual performers than they were last year, but their dancing as a group is a bit uneven still. No matter; the whole company is regaining its class—has regained much of it already, in fact, and it is a pleasure to sit there and watch.

The Mailbag Provides Interesting Items

In the mail bag:

A note from Ruby Zagore, POST correspondent:

"We are putting a fireplace in our new home because, after the two flood rains here in Connecticut last August and October, and seeing how people with all the modern conveniences, all electric furnaces, etc., had no way of keeping warm, I would not be without a fireplace..."

(I had written that today's fireplaces were mostly for show, not use, since homes are now equipped with central automatic heating systems, and why, I wondered, should we devote so much space and money for an item which wasn't being used at all.)

I rather agree with reader Zagore. About the only time the heating equipment of the past comes into its own in today's all-electric home is during some special emergency — storm or flood. This being the case, might it not be practical to include a simple, hidden fireplace in the room plans which would easily be uncovered, perhaps by a sliding panel, in time of emergency?

A LETTER also from reader Hyman Luloff, who if you recall made a date to meet me in Chicago (in 1975 was it?) on his 100th birthday. Young reader Luloff has just hied himself across the continent from Staten Island to the west coast, and sends along a few impressions: "Still on the go! Flew to Denver, then a motor trip to the Rocky Mountains, up to the continental divide, 14,000 feet above sea level; mountains covered with eternal snow; bottomless canyons, rushing gorges, trout fishing.

"Now I am in Los Angeles for a while, looked for a POST but couldn't find it... The youth deserve credit. They have here a Jewish Community Center, A-1 in beauty, space and magnitude, and is it crowded! Too bad the library was closed that night. Maybe I would have found a POST there. So long, old lady, if I settle here I will let you know..."

ALSO IN the mail an invitation to a 50th wedding anniversary. Given for Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Rosenberg in the Hillsboro hotel ballroom, Tampa, Fla. The invitation takes me back to the time I was a little girl and Mr. Rosenberg was an imposing figure in our little Jewish community of Tampa. One of the real leaders then, I remember how we were impressed with his education, his ability to take charge of a meeting (that was long before everyone, especially we women, considered ourselves president material), his fine carriage.

Every once in a while, since I've been up here, I've noticed a letter in The POST from Mr. Rosenberg, a few pertinent remarks to keep the editor on his toes.

Thank you for the invitation and may you enjoy many more years together with your family.

A LETTER from Leonard Snyder, 4220 15th ave., Brooklyn, N.Y. Mr. Snyder writes that in connection with my recent piece on women bringing a sacrifice after the birth of a baby and remaining unclean twice as long for a daughter, he heard a sermon several months ago by Rabbi Swift of Congregation Anshei Sfard of Borough Park on the subject.

Rabbi Swift had explained that "according to the rabbis, after a woman had gone through the pains and travail of childbirth, her first reaction is to say, 'I will shun my husband in the future to prevent any recurrence.' However, after delighting with her child, she changes her mind and it is to forgive any vows she regrets that she is liable for a sacrifice."

And the reason the sacrifice is brought after one week for a boy and after two weeks for a girl is "after the birth of a male child the mother is more easily reconciled than after a daughter who (and notice how diplomatically this is explained, H.C.) may some day have to go through the same agonies as her mother."

I MUST say, Mr. Snyder, that the rabbis of old tried to be understanding and searched for a reasonable explanation for the law. But I can report from my experience that their conclusions weren't too accurate. For one thing I have watched, in my seven trips to the maternity ward, as newly delivered mothers come out of the ether and greet their husbands, as well as my own feelings, and I can report that the reaction is universal — great exaltation and the sharing of a moment of great happiness. They invariably threw their arms around their husbands and held them close as though to thank them for the precious gift of life, their new babies.

That's how soon the change of heart occurs. And as for being reconciled more quickly to a son, you should know, sir, that while wives want sons to please their men, a daughter is always a special delight to a mother, especially if she has hitherto produced only male offspring. I can recall the joy with which I learned, after our first two sons, that the third was a daughter. Over and over again I repeated with pleasure and wonder, "It's a girl. It's a girl."

Perhaps next time the rabbis will consult with the ladies when they wish to make a deduction or other about the reactions of women.

It's A Girl's Room. If...

Some people insist that they can distinguish a boy's room from a girl's by the furniture or color scheme. We think there is an easier method. If the room has a table piled high with scrapbooks, a bulletin board laden with a conglomeration of a dole scent souvenirs, and a diary with a sinister looking lock — it is the boudoir of a young lady.

Evidently, the boys have more faith in their memories because they usually are not afflicted with this "save-it-is."

The scrapbook, whether cardboard or leather covered, is the receptacle for such precious objects as engraved napkins, certificates, used straws that HE gave us, photographs which have been demoted from the billfold, menus, four-leaf clovers, dance pictures, and invitations.

MANY GALS spend hours arranging the items with Scotch tape or glue. Inked labels are filled in so we will never forget exactly whom we doubled with, where we went, what he said, and what kind of time we had.

Assorted calendars commonly find their way to the bulletin boards where they are flanked by newspaper clippings, postcards, recent dance pictures, corsages, menus and dance favors such as lanky cardboard skeletons, wicker canes, and masks.

By the time the school and social season has gotten into full swing, milady's bulletin board is usually covered with two or three layers of sentimental junk which absolutely cannot be dispensed with because eventually it all has to be put in the scrapbook.

IF YOU DIDN'T notice a scrapbook last time you entered a girl's room it was probably smothered under a menagerie of stuffed poodles, monkeys, and bears. At our house the stuffed animals are stored away every summer as sweaters. Each has a special name (and all smell slightly of moth flakes). This collection will probably diminish gradually as young cousins come to visit.

The diary is perhaps the best evidence of girls' passions for remembering details. Some contain strictly factual information about each day's activities. Others are filled with random thoughts, while still others have all kinds of incriminating thoughts expressed in writing.

THE LATTER type makes locks and keys for diaries very

Use Fresh Herbs To Flavor Greens; You Can Even Grow Them!

By SARAH LIEBER

Warm weather is the time for lots of salads. To spark the flavor of greens, fresh herbs are delightful, and I suggest that you grow some in pots on the window sill, or, better yet, in the back-

SARAH There are small packages of herb seeds, and whole herb garden selections which are great fun for the children to plant, and more fun for the cook to experiment with.

When cooking with herbs, remember that a little goes a long way. And it is wise to experiment with tiny traces at first until you determine the amounts best suited to your family's taste.

Certain herbs, of course, seem to have been born to compliment certain dishes, and dill is wonderful in chicken soup, basil is perfect with any tomato dish, mint with lamb or veal, chives with sour cream, and many, many others.

And for flavoring egg dishes with a continental air, try a pinch of this and a pinch of that. After all, the French have an omelet "au fines herbes," which is made with a mixture of finely chopped herbs for an unusual taam.

Many handsome, filling and delicious desserts may be made completely without heating the kitchen. And what a boon that is come hot weather. Pies, always the favorite nochspeis of the men folks, may be made of unbaked crumb crusts, filled with chiffon fillings, ice cream or berries and cream. They are beautiful to look at, easy to prepare, and most geshmak to eat.

CRUMB CRUSTS

Zweiback Crust

- 1 1/4 cups Zweiback crumbs
- 1/2 cup confectioners' sugar
- 3 tbsps. melted butter or margarine

Roll the Zweiback into crumbs by placing the crackers in a paper or plastic bag and using the rolling pin, or pounding with the bottom of a glass. Mix with sugar. Blend in melted butter (parve margarine may be used for a fleishig meal with any parve cracker or cookie). Press into bottom and sides of a greased 9-inch pie pan. Chill before filling.

Corn Flake Crust

- 1 cup crushed corn flakes or other cereal
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup melted butter or margarine

Blend the cereal and sugar together, then add melted butter. Press into pie pan. Chill before filling.

Cookie Crust

- 1 1/4 cup finely crushed vanilla or chocolate wafer crumbs
- 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine
- 1/2 cup finely ground almonds (optional)

Blend crumbs and nuts. Add melted butter or margarine. Press into bottom and sides of pie pan. If desired, halves of cookies may be used on the sides of the greased pan, and the crumb crust on the bottom. This makes an especially pretty pie shell.

BASIC CHIFFON FILLING

- 1 pkg. kosher gelatin, any flavor
- 1/2 cup hot water
- 4 eggs, separated
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup fruit juice or crushed fruit
- pinch of salt
- cream and fruit for garnish (optional)

Dissolve the gelatine in hot water. Beat egg yolk until very light and creamy. Add sugar and salt and the juice or crushed fruit. Cook in the top of the double boiler over moderate heat, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Cool. Beat the egg whites until stiff and fold into mixture. Pour into pie shell. Chill at least two hours or until firm. Garnish with berries, fruit, shaved chocolate or nuts. If desired whipped cream may be used as garnish.

LETTUCE SALAD WITH SOUR CREAM DRESSING

- 1 cup sour cream
- 2 tbsps. lemon juice
- 1 tbsps. vinegar
- 2 tbsps. grated onion or onion juice
- 1 clove garlic, finely minced (optional)
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper (optional)
- 2 small heads lettuce, of different varieties preferably
- 2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced

Mix the sour cream, lemon juice, vinegar and seasonings together. Wash, drain and dry the lettuce. Break into large pieces with the fingers. Pour dressing over the leaves. Chill in the refrigerator two hours. Garnish with the egg slices. Good with a noodle casserole meal. Serves six to eight.

FROSTY FRUIT SALAD

- 3 tbsps. mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 1 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese
- 1 cup orange slices, cut small

A Word To The Wives

In salads and desserts, remember that a combination of colors and textures makes the food most appetizing.

A little extra time spent in the cool morning hours preparing raw vegetables for garnishes saves time at the end of day, when every extra chore seems one too many.

The radish, carrots, celery, raw turnip and other salad materials cut and shaped with imagination into fans, roses, sticks and other garnishes may be kept in ice water for many hours. And what interest they add to the appearance of any food.

Just a Bag of Wind
With Funny Bounces

By GEORGE VASS

"I will not permit 30 men to travel 400 miles merely to agitate a bag of wind."

The college president who uttered this semi-classical line some 80 years ago would flip his tombstone if he were to learn that football teams today sometimes journey more than 3,000 miles simply to agitate a bag of wind.

He would be shocked, no doubt, to discover that they get paid for it; often even more than college presidents.

PROFESSIONAL football, the source of these riches, can be divided into two categories:

- 1-The post-graduate variety as practiced by the Chicago Bears, Los Angeles Rams, New York Giants, et al.
- 2-The undergraduate — although not underpaid — sort so popular with Ohio State, Michigan State, Southern California and similar colleges.

As befits the Darwinian theories sopped up by the undergraduate footballers during idle moments, the fittest among them survive the struggle and are welcomed into the professional ranks. Occasionally they even get more money.

A COUPLE OF WEEKS ago the Philadelphia Eagles short-circuited this pleasant custom. They signed a halfback whose first check for agitating a bag of wind will come from their treasurer.

Mel Siegel, 23, is a brawny 6-foot, 220-pound newly minted alumnus of Washington University (St. Louis). During the past three years, Mel has been whistling satisfyingly accurate passes into the hands of his receivers.

During the 1955 round of activities, Siegel completed 43 of 78 attempts for 622 yards gained and three touchdowns. During the previous campaign, he had connected with 62 or 124 passes, with eight of his receivers going over the goal line.

MEL, THE TAILBACK under Washington Coach Carl Snavely's single wing formation, did not confine his feats to the air. He also churned up a sizable chunk of Francis Field turf, leading the Bears in scoring during his sophomore and junior years.

And—believe it or not—he did all this without being paid for it. Washington University has the audacity to operate an amateur football program. Somehow its board convinced the alumni that it would be fun to let the school pay for football rather than the other way around.

WHILE WASHINGTON hasn't piled up any national championships, it has enjoyed some relaxed and even victorious seasons during the post World War II years. And it has produced several good football players. Among them is Mel Siegel, a Jewish boy from St. Louis. Mel apparently made quite an impression on Coach Snavely, who knows a good player when he sees one, having once coached in the professional college ranks. Snavely recommended Mel to Hugh Devore, coach of the Eagles.

If Mel Siegel sticks with the Eagles next season—and he has an excellent chance of doing so—it will be a feather in the cap of amateur football.

And if he doesn't—it's only a bag of wind, anyway.

SPORTS SHORTS . . . Cleveland's Al Rosen, who in his previous six seasons in the major leagues was thumbed out by umpires only twice, was sent to the showers twice in three days recently by the arbiters. . . The Lynn (Mass.) JCC has won its fourth consecutive national JWB volleyball championship . . . Philly pitcher Saul Rogovin is getting his lumps this season as indicated by the third worst earned-run average among National league pitchers, a far too robust 6.97 in his first 31 innings . . . Ex-Lip Leo Durocher, now a National Broadcasting Co. executive, recently addressed a banquet for the Dallas Friends of the National Jewish Hospital at Denver, one of the former Giant manager's pet charities.

BRANDEIS 9 GETS

WIN 4, LOSE 13

WALTHAM, Mass.—The appointment of Emanuel "Foxy" Flumere as coach of the Brandeis University baseball team was announced this week. Formerly with the coaching staff of Northeastern University, Flumere will succeed Walter Mahoney as coach.

Although the record of four wins and 13 losses this season by the Brandeis baseball team was disappointing, Coach Flumere commended the playing of several of the freshman team members and said he believed their addition to the varsity nine this coming year will strengthen the team considerably.

Orthodox Rabbis
Hit Plan For
Yeshiva In Israel

NEW YORK (NJP)—The proposed establishment of an Orthodox seminary in Israel for the training of rabbis for pulpits outside of Israel was attacked this week by the Union of Orthodox Rabbis of the United States and Canada.

The organization, which is made up mainly of Orthodox rabbis who received their training in Europe, asserted that "even if nominally Orthodox, (the yeshiva) will undermine the foundations of the traditional Orthodox rabbinate and of the traditional Yeshivot . . ." It added that the seminary would be "a menace to Orthodox Judaism in general."

The proposed yeshiva is being planned jointly by the Ministry of Religion of Israel and the Culture Department of the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

Johnston Delays
Vote on Sobeloff

WASHINGTON, D.C. (NJP)—Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S.C.) continues successfully to bar a vote by the Senate Judiciary committee on the nomination of Solicitor General Simon E. Sobeloff to the United States Court of Appeals. The South Carolina senator is only halfway through reading a statement that he started several weeks ago. If the committee does confirm the nomination, it is believed that Senator Johnston would filibuster the confirmation in the Senate.

14 Tangiers Youths
To Enter U. S. Seminary

LONDON (NJP)—An almost hidden dispatch in The Jewish Chronicle of London from its correspondent at Gibraltar described a group of 14 Jewish boys from Tangier who sailed on the S.S. Zion for New York. The report said the youths would enroll at a rabbinical seminary, and were sponsored by the Jewish Agency.

The report did not say which seminary the students would enroll in.

Canadian Rabbi Writes
Word-Origin DictionaryBy CHAIM NEWMAN
National Jewish POST Correspondent

TORONTO (NJP)—A rabbi who is recognized as an expert in etymological research will shortly see the fruition of 10 laborious years of work.

Rabbi Ernest Klein, spiritual leader of Toronto's Beth Yitshak synagogue, is nearing the end of his comprehensive Etymological Dictionary of the English Language, a massive work on the derivation of words. He is fluent in 16 languages, and with an understanding of another 30. Dr. Klein, formerly chief rabbi at Nove Zamky, Czechoslovakia, was sent to Auschwitz, Nazi concentration camp, with his community, and then was sent to Dachau.

After a period as rabbi to the largest Orthodox synagogue in Paris, Dr. Klein came to Toronto as a lecturer, before being appointed to the Beth Yitshak synagogue.

Dr. Klein believes that his work will be more than just another dictionary. "It will be a summing up of the history of mankind," he says.

NEW YORK
Where U. S. Zionism
Can Still Do A Job

By M. Z. FRANK

The Zionist movement has lost control of the fund-raising agencies and of Israel's economy and foreign policy. Zionist leaders since 1948 have been struggling to regain those positions, in part if not in full. In this respect there is no difference in basic aim between Emanuel Neumann and Nahum Goldmann or between Rabbi Silver and Goldmann, when Silver was still active.

The difference is only in method, and in some details. What Neumann tried to do in his plan of June, 1948, Goldmann is now trying to do in his own way. Whether he will succeed or not, remains to be seen. But for the time being it is clear that the organized Zionists do not control the fund-raising activities for Israel; they do not control Israel's domestic policies—they hardly even influence it and the non-Zionist zealots of Williamsburg who demonstrated against Israel's drafting women into service exerted stronger pressure than any unanimous decision by the Zionist Congress.

THERE IS one field, however, which is still left to organized Zionism. It is the field of Zionist ideas, Zionist ideals, and Zionist education. That is why I thought Neumann did very wisely in taking over the Herzl Institute and Herzl Foundation, which has now completed a year's activities. That is why I think it is a good thing for the movement—I hope it is as good for the man in question—that it took Eliot Cohen.

More can be said in praise of the Herzl Institute than in criticism. All its publications, the magazine included, are on a high literary and editorial level. Neumann has surrounded himself with an excellent staff, whose members are not only competent, but devoted to the job they are doing. He has also achieved within a relatively short time what organized Zionism has lacked for two decades: An intellectual atmosphere, a circle of people interested in serious discussion.

It is small discussion circles like this that in the past created a living Zionist movement. It is only they that can give it a new life.

IN MIDSTREAM, the vague and ambiguous "questioning of the status quo" in Jewish life announced in the first issue is beginning to take real Zionist shape in Ben Halper's two articles (in the first and third issues) in which, specifically, the Euphoria of the Dripping Fat that has taken such a hold on Jewish thinking in America is being subjected to devastating examination. These two articles, together with others by the same author in The Jewish Frontier, are now published in book form.

(The Euphoria of the Dripping Fat is my free rendering of another alliterative phrase first employed by Moses—Vayishman Yeshurun—And Jeshurun—the Jews—has grown fat.)

Additional Reviews

VANQUISH THE ANGEL, by Diana and Meir Gillon, $3.50 (John Day).

As "a novel of modern Israel" the Gillon book is an authentic portrayal of life in Palestine under the Mandate and through the war of liberation. The authors are highly skilled in portraying character and telling a story. But the account is a bit too "modern."

As a boy Yoel rebels against his parents and his religion (with huzzahs by the writers), goes off to study in England, returns with a shiksha.

The shiksha is, for no good reason, faithless to him with a British captain of police. Then, under stress of the siege of Jerusalem, he takes back the adulteress.

Goyim and "emancipated" Israelis probably will eat this novel up; but Conservative and loyal Jews may find it hard to take, despite its superior fictional qualities.

THE MODERN JEW FACES ETERNAL PROBLEMS, by Aron Barth, $3.50 (Jewish Agency).

Dr. Barth, descendant of famed Jewish scholars, is general manager of the Bank Leumi le-Israel. Yet this man of finance and business has written one of the most learned and powerful expositions and defenses of traditional Judaism in history. There may be observant Jews who will not accept his full beliefs concerning revelation or the impeccability of the Torah text, but who will still not quarrel with Barth's insistence on traditional observance. He makes it clear that the only way to be a Jew is to live as Jews always have, and not as the general population does. His is a Judaism without adjectives, which are to him limiting and destructive. But the learning and brilliance of his text will attract Jews of all shades and no shade at all. Only Heschel on this side of the Atlantic burns with the same devotion.

NEW HORIZONS FOR THE SYNAGOGUE, by Jeshaja Schnitzer, $3 (Bloch).

Rabbi Schnitzer has specialized in direct assistance to perturbed men and women in his own Human Relations center of his New Jersey synagogue. His book describes the experiment, provides interesting case studies and their solutions, and urges that all rabbis be prepared for such duties both at the seminars and by personal application. With this work and reference to the bibliographic lists, every clergyman can adapt himself to labor among troubled humans with enhanced skill and understanding. For, as Schnitzer indicates, this may be the most important task of the religious leader.—ABRAHAM BURSTEIN.

NEW ZIONIST GROUP NAMES NATION-WIDE COMMITTEE

NEW YORK (NJP)—The provisional committee named to organize the Independent Zionist Group of America, a new General Zionist organization, which is a splinter group of the Zionist Organization of America, was announced this week.

A resolution passed at an oneg shabbat (NJP, June 15, 1956) at which moves were begun which will lead to the formation of the new group, declared that Zionist groups in the diaspora "should refrain from affiliation or identification with any Israeli political party . . ."

THIS IS a criticism of the Zionist Organization of America, which is aligned loosely with the General Zionist Party of Israel.

Judge Louis E. Levinthal, of Philadelphia, a past president of the ZOA, was chairman of the organizing meeting.

The provisional committee includes Judge Levinthal, Dewey

Stone, Boston; Ezra Shapiro, Cleveland; Fred Monosson, Boston; Louis Lipsky, New York; Benjamin G. Browdy, New York; Samuel H. Daroff, Philadelphia; Sol Luckman, Cincinnati; Fredric R. Mann, Philadelphia; Philip Lown, Boston.

Also Jacob M. Alkow, New York; Abe S. Kay, Washington; Lawrence Lasky, Boston; Benjamin Harris, Chicago; Robert Silverman, Boston; Louis Falk, New Jersey; Judge Jacob Schwolsky, Hartford; Adolph Hiamberger, Baltimore; Irving Norry, Rochester.

Also, Rabbi Isidore Breslau, Washington; Dr. Louis Fishbein, Brooklyn; Judah Richards, Long Island; Rabbi David I. Passow, Philadelphia; Rabbi Joachim Prinz, Newark; M. J. Rabinowitz, Boston.

Also Sam Merson, New York; Oscar Altschuler, Youngstown; I. J. Caplan, New York; Samuel Kratzok, Philadelphia; Louis P. Rocker, New York; Mitchell Cohen, Philadelphia; Max Kohrman, Cleveland; Albert A. Levine, Cleveland; Lazar Lipsky, New York.

Also Julius Fligelman, Los Angeles; Samuel Jacobson, Chicago; Louis M. Seiver, Philadelphia; Samuel Shuman, Philadelphia; Abraham Krasnow, Philadelphia.

LEVINTHAL WITHDRAWS PHILADELPHIA (NJP)

Judge Louis E. Levinthal, honorary president of the Philadelphia Zionist district, has asked that his name be withdrawn after he was re-nominated for the same position. Arnold Ginsberg, president of the PZO, said that Judge Levinthal had declined to debate the issues which led to the formation of the Independent Zionist group, with Emanuel Neumann, chairman of the National Executive Committee of the Zionist Organization of America.

BOOKS AND RELIGIOUS ITEMS

BOOK BY BRANDEIS U. PROF. UNDAUNTED BY JEWISH VOTE

THE POLITICAL BEHAVIOR OF AMERICAN JEWS, by Lawrence H. Fuchs, $4 (Free Press).

Although Prof. Fuchs' study ably covers the facts from the early days of the country, its major thesis is the change of Jewish votes to the party of FDR, and the unlikely trend back to Republicanism by Jewish "liberals" and "Democrats."

It is not a completely objective study, since the writer sometimes expresses his own feelings in the form of axioms.

But it is the only one of its kind, truthful, scholarly, comprehensive.

Rightly, Fuchs protests the sensitivity that makes some "afraid to admit that a Jew's politics might be affected by his religion"—other factors being equal.

At present he finds Stevenson, Kefauver, and Harriman all favored by the Jewish electorate. There is always "the Jewish penchant for reform candidates." And, of course, there is the great body of socialist Jews, most spawned in the clothing industries, which has in the main turned to the present Democratic party.

But most American Jews, strangely enough, turned to democracy just at the moment they were going up the "economic ladder," when they might be expected to remain Republicans. Yet what can be "expected" in American politics? Even the sagacity of a Fuchs can set no hard and fast assumptions.

PHILO'S PLACE IN JUDAISM, by Samuel Sandmel, $3.50 (HUC Press).

The sub-title of Dr. Sandmel's work best expresses its thesis—"A Study of Conceptions of Abraham in Jewish Literature."

The Apocrypha, the Midrash, and Josephus are among the works whose concepts of Abraham provide the antithesis to Philo's interpretation. For as to the famed allegorist, "Philo sees in Scripture the experience of every man"—and all his defenses and portrayals of Abraham are given this wider application. Also, "Philo had little or no concern with Palestine"—an important fact in treating the life of the patriarch. However, Philo contrasts Abraham with ordinary men, "to show Abraham's pre-eminence."

The major purpose in his direct and allegorical accounts of Abraham's development is to teach that "man represents a mixture of the material and the immaterial." And finally: "The Abraham of the rabbis is . . . the ancestor who lived in accordance with the Jewish law. . . . The Abraham of Philo lived by the natural law of which the Mosaic law was only a copy." For full understanding of the Alexandrian philosopher, one must read Sandmel supplementary to Wolfson's distinguished work on Philo.

The EDITOR'S CHAIR

THERE ISN'T room for an editor's note on the letter page this week, so we'll challenge George Levison's claim here that our headline was misleading. Even Mr. Levison's letter bears out that the headline was factual. All he is doing is making this charge as a device to make a plea for his heartless case against the UJA and Israel.

The headline in last week's paper read, and very properly, we think: "Judaism Council Officer Hits Arabs, Asks UJA Gifts." Mr. Levison does not claim in his letter that Rabbi Reichert is not an officer of the American Council for Judaism. Nor does he claim that Rabbi Reichert did not criticize the Arabs or ask for gifts to the United Jewish Appeal.

So how can he say that the headline was inaccurate or misleading?

We don't want to challenge Mr. Levison's closely thought-out criticism of the United Jewish Appeal and of Israel, or of the actions of the United States Jewish community here. But we think that his points should be answered.

THE USE of slogans like foreign government and agent of a foreign government, etc., is something we think is a little underhanded, especially when what is involved is the saving of human lives.

The position of the Jewish Agency for Palestine is not something secret. It is the body set up a few years after the issuance of the Balfour Declaration to represent the Jews of the world in relation to Israel, and it functions just like any other humanitarian agency, except in this case the people whom the Agency represents are being hounded in several parts of the world at the moment, and Mr. Levison's contribution to alleviating the plight of these desperate souls is to try by the use of words to cast suspicion on what is probably one of history's great instruments for good.

If someone better able than us doesn't answer Mr. Levison's cruel letter, then we may try our hand at it the next or the following week.

There is one field in which the Jewish literati are lagging, and it is difficult to explain when you stop to think about it.

By now the presses are kept humming with Jewish novels, Jewish scholarly works, Jewish children's works, new prayer books, and so forth. But where is there anything being done in Jewish biographies?

A sale of 5,000 for any Jewish work is considered excellent.

A good biography, perhaps one about Adolph Ochs, or Isaac

NO ADVENTUROUS, COURAGEOUS SOULS

When you stop to think about it, the wonder is that there is not a growing stream of young American Jews going to Israel.

Beleaguered on all sides, tossed to the wolves by the Russians who see more to gain in world politics by siding with the Arabs, and rebuffed by the United States, with the United Nations practically powerless, it would seem that American Jewish youngsters would rally to the side of Israel, and go there to be of whatever help they might be.

But instead, there isn't even a hundred, no not even twenty-five, hardly even ten.

If this is a commentary on the courage and the idealism of American Jewish youth—or even its Jewishness, then so be it.

HOLLYWOOD'S JEWS

A photograph in The California Jewish Voice, of Los Angeles, showing Dore Schary, head of operation at M-G-M Studios in Hollywood, receiving a plaque from ORT for his work in behalf of that organization, offers a good subject for editorializing.

While most readers of this paper would be unable to designate what ORT stands for, much less the work that the organization does, a busy film magnate can be found who among all his myriad tasks—who wouldn't be run crazy dealing with Hollywood's motley crew of personalities—does this kind of work in the Jewish community.

The commentary on Jewish life today which this tableau offers should need no elaboration from this writer.

MOROCCO CLOSES DOORS ON JEWS

Whether or not Morocco rescinds its ban which in effect ends emigration to Israel, there is a lesson in this cruel act which imprisons several hundred thousand Jews to indescribable poverty and degradation.

When the United Jewish Appeal used the theme of a race against time and urged liberal contributions in order to move out as many Jews from North Africa as quickly as possible, some Jews must have thought that this was just another fund-raising technique to soften the hearts and loosen the purse strings.

But history has a way of tearing the heart strings of Jews beyond the worst fears or predictions.

At the time the American Jewish Committee expressed their concern lest the Jewish community of North Africa might be stampeded into evacuating their homes and leaving because of Israel propaganda, we took vigorous exception to this position. It seemed to us to be totally unwarranted in the light of history and conditions of Jews in North Africa.

The Committee later ameliorated its Very likely there would be a number of young American Jews embarking for Israel if there were some official movement in the Zionist organization which would issue a call to them, or provide an address, as it were, where they might inquire.

But unfortunately there isn't, and it doesn't seem very likely that there will be any in the near future, what with the kind of Zionist leadership there is in the United States these days.

This is no excuse for American Jewish youth, though, and it is almost incomprehensible that in all the hundreds of thousands of them there aren't some adventurous, courageous souls who just cannot sit back and see little Israel deserted—Israel has not that first alliance in all the world—and by hook or crook find their way to its shores.

Mr. Schary may be the leader of Hollywood's Jews, for he is a chairman of the University of Judaism, and a principal in Camp Brandeis, Shlomo Bardin's successful experiment in adult Jewish education, among other activities.

But if he is the leader, then the others can't be too far behind.

By 1956 Hollywood's Jews—the stars, the producers, the technicians, et alii—are not only no longer hiding their Jewishness, but taking their proper place in the American Jewish community, sometimes offering true leadership as proof that talented Jews no longer are alienated, but can and do make positive contributions to the developing maturity of the United States Jewish group.

position and emphasized that it stood for the right of Jews to live in peace and freedom in whatever part of the world they resided.

The action of Morocco in cutting off emigration of Jews to Israel, catching perhaps 50,000 Jews who had already left their "homes" and moved to large cities where they could easily embark for Israel, was unexpected only by those who close their eyes to Jewish history.

The stand of the American Jewish Committee, perfectly correct as it was on paper, shows once again that the 20th Century is no time for Jews to relax their vigilance.

Ben Gurion has expressed it time and time again that Israelis must learn to rely on themselves, since there is no reliance for them on anyone else.

The Jews can only hope that world opinion will force Morocco to once again allow those Moroccan Jews who wish to leave to go in peace. What the fate will be otherwise of these unbelievably poor and hopeless Jews it is better not to contemplate.

Sixth Year For Unique Program

Congregation Holds Summer Services Under Large 40x40 Tent

CLEVELAND (NJP)—Religious services under the "big top" are a regular feature of the summer program of the Temple on the Heights Alumni Association.

Setting for the services is a 40x40-foot rented tent pitched on the lawn of one of the group's advisors or members.

Chairs are also rented and lights and prayer books are borrowed to make the summer synagogue complete.

A "rabbi" and "cantor" for the Conservative service are recruited from among the membership. Attendance at the once-a-month services range from 50 to about 125, according to leaders of the group.

After services, refreshments are served out under the stars. The group has been scheduling these summer fun services for about the past six years.

BALAK

Balaam and Micah—Low Religion and High

By RABBI J. J. WEINSTEIN
The sedra and the Haftorah juxtapose in Balaam and Micah, low religion and high.

Balaam may be, as Maurice Samuel insists, a perverted genius, but essentially he is a high-priced soothsayer. He is in the business of mobilizing, for a consideration, the invisible god and his spirit hosts on the side of the paying clients.

ONE SUCH client is Balak, king of Moab. Balak fears the Israelites who have come up out of Egypt. They are not grasshoppers in his sight, but a mighty multitude who will lick up his land as an ox licketh up the grass.

WEINSTEIN He offers Balaam great honors if Balaam will curse the people of Israel, for "I know that he whom thou blestest is blessed and he whom thou cursest is cursed."

In a dung heap a violet may blossom. So in Balaam, craven and greedy though he be, there is a responsiveness to a truth higher than himself.

GRANTED IT took the magic interposition of a talking ass and a chastising angel to open his eyes and bring him on the side of the righteous, he did let himself be persuaded. Once persuaded, he prophesied pearls of primitive poetry.

Who can resist the power and the majesty of these lines:

Lo, it is a people that shall dwell alone

And shall not be reckoned among the nations

Who hath counted the dust of Jacob

Or numbered the stock of Israel

Let me die the death of the righteous

And let mine end be like his!

Or consider:

How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob

Thy dwellings, O Israel!

As valleys stretched out

As gardens by the river side

As aloes planted of the Lord

As cedars beside the waters

Water shall flow from his branches

And his seed shall be in many waters . . .

Blessed be every one that blesseth thee.

POOR BALAK! He tried the most renowned specialist of his age only to be told that he was definitely and irrevocably doomed.

Because Micah mentions Balaam, the fifth and sixth chapters of his prophecy are read as the Haftorah to Sedra Balak.

It is in the eighth verse of the sixth chapter where we find this glorious definition of high religion:

It hath been told thee, O man, what is good,

And what the Lord doth require of thee:

Only to do justly, and to love mercy, and

To walk humbly with thy God.

THIS INCOMPARABLE sentence prescribes the three elements of any great faith: Justice, mercy and humility. It is the unique glory of Judaism that it made justice a social justice, mercy an act of loving kindness and humility a personal purity which opened the soul to the invasion of God.

Balaam's god is an outside power who can be conjured, bribed or manipulated on the side of the petitioner. Micah's God is the moral imperative bringing man into the good life.

REICHERT STORY HEADLINE MISLEADING, SAYS LEVISON

● Editor, National Jewish POST: It is regrettable that in mixing propaganda and reporting you put a completely misleading headline over the Page 1 story of Rabbi Reichert's letter in your June 15 edition. Whatever Rabbi Reichert's opinions may be personally, or as rabbi emeritus of Temple Emanu-El, these have nothing to do with the American Council for Judaism.

The policy position of the Council has, for years, been to expose the "Jewish" nationalist subsidies provided by the United Jewish Appeal and to leave each member of the Council to determine, on the basis of the facts and his own principles, whether or not he will contribute.

I, for example, am also a past campaign chairman and past budget committee chairman of the San Francisco Welfare Fund. Since a major portion of the collections of the fund go to the United Jewish Appeal; since the UJA hands over the major portion of its funds to a registered foreign agent; since no one can obtain a satisfactory accounting of how this foreign agent uses these American funds; since some portion of those funds returns to the United States to finance Zionist propaganda and other portions are used to subsidize political parties in Israel, I—and many other Council members—no longer find it possible to contribute.

We are particularly loath to contribute this year when the basis of the UJA appeal is a campaign to operate an Israeli immigration office in Morocco to enlist manpower for Israel against the wishes of many Moroccan Jews and the new government of Morocco. At the very least, this puts American Jews in the ambiguous position of financing a political and national adventure of one foreign state (Israel) which is nothing less than interference in the internal policies of another foreign state, Morocco. If Rabbi Reichert elects to participate in all of these UJA activities, that is certainly his privilege. But his action does not—in any way—reflect the policy of the Council.

Furthermore, the Council believes the controversy between the Arab countries and Israel is a controversy between states, all of which are foreign to American citizens. Assuming Rabbi Reichert were correct in his interpretation of the recent Security Council discussions—and his interpretation is highly debatable—neither the Syrian position nor the Israeli reaction are affairs of Council policy.

If one elects to join the chorus of those who insist upon viewing the Arab-Israel conflict as one which can be resolved only by choosing within the pattern of the false dilemmas posed by Zionism—that is, either Israel's way or bust—this, too, is his privilege. If he chooses to disregard the authority of the United Nations and tries to establish, along with Zionists, a new basis for a solution predicated on something vaguely defined as a "mutually acceptable basis," he is free to do so. But again, to put a headline over an expression of this personal opinion which would lead your readers to believe anyone else in the Council even suggests this should be Council policy is to distort rather than to reveal the truth of the situation.

Much of the damage is done by your unwarranted editorializing in headlines. But something of whatever good faith you may employ may still be demonstrated if you publish this letter in full and with prominence equal to that given in your sensationalized treatment of Rabbi Reichert's personal opinion.

Abuse, Disrespect Is Hebrew Teacher's Lot

● Editor, National Jewish POST: In the June 1 issue of The POST, there appeared a small, but very significant, article quoting some remarks made by Dr. Leo L. Honor, in which he commented on the "deplorable economic status" of Jewish teachers.

Dr. Honor is not the first to speak out against the terrible conditions that exist. There have been editorials, newspaper articles, and hundreds of speeches and conversations commenting on the low salaries and the general teacher shortage.

But in the midst of all this grandiose speech-making not one word has been heard from the poor "shlamazel" known as the Hebrew school teacher.

All this talk about the disease and not one word from the patient.

And so, with your kind permission, I would like to offer myself as a guinea pig.

I am a Hebrew school teacher. In reality, I am the principal of a Conservative congregational school of over 400 families in a thriving Midwest community. However, I also teach and dance and who knows what else.

For my $6,000 salary (after five years in one community) which the congregation considers fantastically exorbitant, I act as assistant to the rabbi, assistant to the shamas, and sometimes even assistant to the janitor.

This, of course, tends to create a situation in which the teacher becomes a general errand boy—and no one placed in that position can long maintain the respect of his students and function as a competent educator.

But the salary itself is not the only bone of contention. A teacher does not go into the profession to become rich. He goes into it as a dedicated person who loves his work, but who expects a decent living salary, without having to lose his self-respect.

No, the poor salary is only one problem.

The abuse and criticism and disrespect with which the Jewish teacher is faced—therein lies the rut.

A person, especially a teacher, must be made to feel that he is accomplishing his purpose. Teaching is not a job; it is an art with a message.

But the American Jewish parent sees Jewish education only as a sort of necessary evil.

We should teach our children how to read—a little, to write—a little, and to be Jews—a little.

But not too much, for they might overeat and become sick. The whole diet consciousness of the American society is imposed upon our children, and they are put on a very strict diet of Jewish education.

"Why do our children need homework?" "Why graduation at 16?" "Why not a Sunday school?" Always "why" and always questioning in a negative and not a positive manner.

You wouldn't question your child's public school teacher thusly, or your doctor—why us? Are we attempting to do anything but help your children grow into healthy-minded, moral and upright citizens, as well as Jews?

And yet we are contradicted every step of the way!

You, the parents, want us, the teachers, to perform in four to six years the miracle you can't perform in a lifetime. You want us to build up in a few school hours what you can destroy during the remainder of the week. You want us to give our whole life to your child, but you won't even give us your confidence or your respect.

If you would give your confidence, as you give it to your doctor who deals with your body, or your lawyer who deals with your legal problems, to us who deal with your child's mind, and our people's greatest heritage, then we will be your teachers, upholding our oath.

But if, dear parents, we teach your child to read Hebrew, Jewish history, and a love of the holidays and the Torah, and the holidays come and your child is in public school, instead of in the synagogue, or he takes piano lessons Saturday morning, instead of attending junior congregation services, then where are we?

What self-respecting teacher will remain long in a community, or a profession, in which he teaches in a vacuum, and becomes only a glorified "baby sitter"?

The future leaders and teachers of Judaism are the children who respect Judaism now, who attend services, join Jewish youth groups, attend conventions, and participate in all synagogue activities. If they don't do these things now when they are young, our synagogues will be even emptier in the future.

We must recognize that our schools must have definite standards. Pupils should be graded on merit, and not on the standing of parents within the synagogue. Teachers need to be respected. They need to feel secure. Tenure, retirement, pensions, social security, graduated salary increases—all of these will tend to stabilize Jewish education.

We must recognize that the Jewish teacher will not long remain a "migratory worker."

No salary, regardless of amount, can compensate for being away from home, family, and friends. The teacher must be accepted as a member of the community and be respected as a professional.

The disease is plainly visible; the cure even more so.

I, of course, have been with my present congregation five years. My contract still has a few years to go.

How long will I remain in the profession? I don't know.

In the meantime, you can find me listed in the yellow pages of your local telephone book under "Dedicated Fools."

SAYS KLUTZNICK CAN END COMPETITION OF AGENCIES

● Editor, National Jewish POST: Since reading the charges and counter-charges between Isaac Toubin of the American Jewish Congress and Benjamin Epstein of the Anti-Defamation League as to who is doing the most in the matter of racial integration, I am inclined to believe that, at its best, such debates leave the Jewish community as confused as ever.

Integration, and who is doing the better job between the defense agencies to hasten it, is not nearly as important as the competition and confusion still prevalent between such agencies; namely, the Anti-Defamation League, the American Jewish Committee and the American Jewish Congress.

You will pardon my suggestion when I say that you would do the Jewish community a great service if you devoted as much time and space in your paper to writing a timely editorial restating the facts of where the responsibility lies in perpetuating these costly competitive defense agencies in order to awaken the Jewish community leaders to do something about solving the problem.

You will recall when Philip

Klutznick became president of the B'nai B'rith you interviewed him and, following your interview, you wrote an editorial to the effect that here at last a man of stature arrived on the scene that will bring about unity and co-operation between the Jewish defense agencies which would eliminate waste and duplication among them.

So far nothing has happened. Division, competition and duplication are as rampant as ever, not only between the Anti-Defamation League and the American Jewish Congress, but between the Anti-Defamation League and the American Jewish Committee.

In spite of the fact that these two agencies combine their influence in securing funds from the welfare agencies throughout the country—they yet duplicate their activities, which has proved a waste of money and effort.

The question is—when will it end? In order to try to solve this problem, the community spent $25,000 and employed Professor MacIver, who spent almost two years to study and evaluate the problem. He submitted an enlightened, intelligent report which was accepted and acclaimed by the community as a sound solution to the problem.

The American Jewish Committee and B'nai B'rith vetoed it and consequently the MacIver report, with its recommendations and the endorsement of the Jewish community, was put gently to bed. These flareups between the competitive defense agencies seeking credit for what they do will continue and will solve nothing. Printing them will only tend to confuse our people. Klutznick is the logical man among the agencies in the position to co-ordinate the work of the defense agencies. He must convince his comrades in the upper echelon of the B'nai B'rith that the common welfare of the Jewish community is more important than organizational prestige.

The American Jewish Congress has always been ready to co-operate. Klutznick must be urged from all quarters to use his power and influence to bring about a solution to this urgent problem and, if accomplished, will earn the gratitude of the Jewish people.

ORTHODOXY WILL SURVIVE, OTHER KINDS NOT RELIGION

● Editor, National Jewish POST: I disagree with your "Hesped" for a "dying" Orthodoxy in the diaspora.

Orthodoxy will survive and flourish again as it did in Europe as long as yeshivas-keanos continue their 700%-increase pace. The cause of the temporary decline in Orthodoxy is stated in the Editor's Chair right next to your "Orthodoxy's Last Hope" farce: "The children stay in Hebrew schools only a short time and learn little that is relevant to their lives. The bar mitzva is still the goal of Jewish education."

The Talmud states: "If there is no Jewish education there can be no fear of G-d." Many American Jews who, due to inadequate education, cannot believe in G-d and Torah ideals, join Conservative and Reform congregations and rationalize that they are now "good religious Jews." They would be wiser to openly acknowledge that they have no religious feeling (even though they outwardly observe a few rituals and customs) and strive to give their hearts a fair chance by joining adult education classes conducted by G-d-fearing teachers.

The dictionary defines "religion" as follows: "A belief binding the spiritual nature of man to a supernatural being, as involving a feeling of dependence and responsibility, together with the feelings and practices which naturally flow from such a belief. Spiritual awakening and conformity of heart and life with religious belief."

One of the outstanding Conservative rabbis in the United States told an Orthodox rabbi friend of mine: "You don't really believe that bunk about the Torah being given at Mt. Sinai, do you?"

The rituals and ceremonies that are practiced by the Conservative and Reform movements cannot be classified as religion, according to the dictionary's definition that these practices must naturally flow from a belief binding man to G-d.

This is proven by the fact that Conservatism and Reform have not taken hold in Israel. The Israeli usually has had a better Jewish education than his American brother and will either adhere to Orthodox principles or openly admit to being irreligious—pretentious rites do not fool him.

And this is my reply to Dr. Janowsky's question which you quote in "They Say": "Why should a capable young man become a Hebrew teacher when he can become a rabbi?" I am convinced that the main hope for the Jewish religion is inspired Hebrew teachers in yeshivas-keanos inculcating Torah ideals in the children of today who will be the Orthodox Jews of tomorrow.

Survey of Reform To Be Suggested By Rabbi Brickner

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (NJP) — Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner of Cleveland is expected to urge the Reform movement to initiate a survey to find the answers to many questions confronting the Reform and American Jewish communities, in his presidential report to be delivered here to the 67th annual convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

The recommended survey would seek to determine the need for the continuance of secular Jewish agencies, the question of whether Jewish worship, Jewish education and Jewish recreational group work should be combined under the same roof and supported by communal funds and would also determine whether the divisions that somewhat artificially divide Jews are necessary.

Rabbi Brickner will no doubt challenge the Orthodox rabbinical bodies which have voted to ask their members to withdraw from bodies in which Reform and Conservative rabbis hold membership.

THE AMERICAN Council for Judaism also will very likely come in for its "misrepresentations" and Rabbi Brickner will probably ask the CCAR to go on record as asking the United States to authorize the sale of arms to Israel at once.

The discrimination of Arab nations against United States Jews may form the subject of another recommendation by the Cleveland spiritual leader, who is expected to charge that the Arab propaganda in the United States is not only anti-Israel but anti-Semitic as well.

THE RECENT criticism of the American Jewish community by Nahum Goldmann before the recent World Zionist Congress which elected him president, will most likely get its share of attention in the report. Rabbi Brickner is known to believe that the forces for Jewishness are greater in America today than they have ever been, and most likely will charge Dr. Goldmann with doing a disservice to American Jewry by his pessimistic charges of disintegration of Jewish life in America.

A final recommendation of the report will be the covering of a meeting of religious leaders of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish denominations to work out a guide for achieving desegregation in the South.

ONE OF the plenary sessions at the conference, which opens Monday and continues through Thursday, will be devoted to an analysis of the average American Jewish home and its religious values.

The Conference will hear the report of a committee established to study the feasibility of women in the rabbinate.

Rabbis Outspoken, However, To Their Members

Says Jews Treat Negroes Same As Non-Jews

NEW YORK (NJP) — "What our friends in the North do not fully appreciate is the fact that there is no difference between most of the Jews and their Christian neighbors in their attitudes toward the Negro."

This is the view of Rabbi Perry E. Nussbaum, of Jackson, Miss., one of three Southern rabbis taking part in a symposium in the current issue of the Central Conference of American Rabbis (Reform) Journal.

Discussing the "Southern Rabbi Faces Desegregation," Rabbi Nussbaum declared that he had made his "position clear about the Citizens Councils . . . even though some of my congregants don't approve of my discussing the matter or the position I have taken."

He said he preached several times on the question, and told his members that "our congregation has not resigned from Judaism" and that "Mississippi Jews cannot resign from the Jewish people."

However, he wrote "In the Delta area of our State, where the Jewish merchant is pressured into taking sides, I would be the last to ask that he make a martyr of himself and his family and prepare to move when he is compelled to join the Citizens Council."

Rabbi Nussbaum said he knew "several rabbis in this area who are devoted to social justice and the cause of the Negro. So much of what we do and say cannot be publicized."

RABBI CHARLES MANTINBAND, of Hattiesburg, Miss., declared that his board told him "in no uncertain terms that they would prefer their rabbi remained silent, if not neutral, on the segregation issue."

He said he pointed out that "this was an unreasonable request, and that it was impossible" for him to concur.

Rabbi Mantinband told of delivering sermons on the desegregation issue and some of his "members took exception to these utterances and manifested their displeasure by complaining, quarreling and then remaining away from worship."

He added, however, that there have been no resignations. The third rabbi in the symposium was Rabbi Jacob Rothschild of Atlanta who asserted that: "If white Christians are fearful, the Jew is panic-stricken. . . . He prefers to take on the protective coloration of his environment, to hide his head in the cotton patch in the dual hope that he won't be noticed and the problem will go away."

He recalled the "innocent resolution upholding the Supreme Court as the interpreter of the law" which "was defeated by delegates to the Southeast Region of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations."

He told of the protest against the invitation to a Negro president of an Atlanta college to address his Sisterhood. The protest was vociferous, he wrote, "but that of a tiny minority." He wrote that his "board expressed agreement not only with my right to speak, but with the intent and content of the expression."

Rabbi Rothschild took the position that no good purpose would be served by the rabbis in the South leading crusades.

Social Action Office In South Urged On Reform

NEW YORK (NJP) — A bold proposal for the establishment of a Social Action office in the South by the Union of American Hebrew Congregations was made to the executive board of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations by Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath, its president.

Dr. Eisendrath said the office is not distant and academic but would give Jewish leadership real, immediate and meaningful encouragement, counsel and needed materials and serve as a liaison between the UAHC Southern Regional Council and Jewish communities in the South to show that the Union's interest

"The cause or religion will rise or fall in accordance with the response to the challenge of the racial problem," Dr. Eisendrath asserted. "If we yield to fear and hatred, if we trade a cowardly yes instead of a daring no, then we and our precious faith will fail. This is the severest test in our decade of the validity of the ideals of organized religion."

Referring to the boycott of city buses by the Negroes of Montgomery, Ala., Dr. Eisendrath termed it "the most radiant example of religion in action," and charged that "hardly a single white Christian clergyman or rabbi in Montgomery dared to raise his voice on behalf of the sublimely courageous group led by Dr. Martin Luther King..."
